Enforcing Judgments

- Judgments are not self-enforcing
- In Queensland, the life of a judgment is 12 years.
- Interest runs at the current rate of 8.5% p.a. (subject to change but will always exceed bank deposit rates).
- The Mendelsons Fixed Price Fully Inclusive Legal Solutions covers all costs, including disbursements but is based on you providing a copy of the judgment and the information you provide being correct.

Enforcement Hearing

- The Enforcement Hearing is prepared by us, issued by the Court and served personally on the debtor.
- The Enforcement Hearing compels the debtor to attend Court on a specified day. Many debtors will pay up to avoid the trauma of going to Court. If the debtor does not make any payment, they will be questioned on oath about their financial affairs and we can request for specific questions to be asked. The answers will be provided to Mendelsons Lawyers and a copy will be given to you.
- In addition, an arrest order will usually be made if the debtor fails to turn up.
- Not normally very effective.

Garnishee of Wages (Enforcement Warrant)

- Garnishee of Wages is an Order from the Court to the debtor's employer.
- The employer will be ordered to deduct a specified sum from the debtor's wages to settle the debt and to forward the money to us.
- The Court will award costs of the Application against the debtor.
- Garnishee of Wages is a useful procedure if the debtor is in a stable employment. In such event, the debt will usually be recovered but it may be over a long period. If the debtor leaves his job, the Order will lapse.
- In cases where we are able to obtain recovery without obtaining a court order, we will still account to you in full for an amount equivalent to the cost order which would have been made.
- The fee does not cover attendances for collecting and monitoring the payments. Payments can either be made directly to you or we will discuss a fee if you wish us to handle them.
- High success rate.
